New Jersey's Current Operating Environment Brief

The New Jersey Regional Intelligence Academy cordially invites you to a public safety briefing discussing the current threats posed by the Islamic State of Iraq and Syria (ISIS) and Homegrown Violent Extremists (HVEs).

Description

The New Jersey Office of Homeland Security and Preparedness along with the Federal Bureau of Investigation, Newark and Philadelphia Divisions, Joint Terrorism Task Force, and the New Jersey State Police will provide an overview of the current threats posed by the ISIS and their continued intent to target the United States. The participating agencies will discuss the radicalization process, the threats posed by HVEs, and the impact of domestic terrorism to the first responder community in New Jersey. Additionally, an overview of New Jersey's Suspicious Activity Reporting System will be provided.

Registration

This briefing is for law enforcement, security, and public safety related professions only. Identification is required for admission. Spaces are limited and preregistration is required no later than three days prior to each delivery.
