MAYOR REDD ANNOUNCES YOUTH & ADULT SUMMER 2016 EMPLOYMENT OPPORTUNITIES IN THE CITY OF CAMDEN

CAMDEN, NJ – Mayor Dana L. Redd today announced that the City of Camden is accepting applications for various youth and adult summer employment positions for the 2016 Summer Recreation Program and the Summer Food Service Program. Depending on the available summer position, the temporary seasonal employment can pay between $8.50 – $15.00 per hour.

“I strongly encourage Camden residents to get their applications into the City Human Services Department by May 20th,” Mayor Redd said. “The summer recreation and food service programs are very successful. They’ve become essential programs which many of our residents count on. In addition, these programs offer our Camden residents jobs through the summer. They are a benefit to everyone who is involved.”

“I commend Mayor Redd and the Department of Human Services for all their hard work, ensuring these opportunities are provided to our residents,” City Council President Frank Moran said. “I think many of us can recall working either a summer or season job. These jobs are enjoyable while providing our residents with great work experience.”

The City’s Summer Youth Employment Program is a six week program designed to provide an educational experience and financial incentive for our City’s youth. The youth placed in offices and other work sites will also develop relationships with employees that foster positive interpersonal relationships.

Last summer, the City’s Food Service Program distributed approximately 5,600 free lunches a day to Camden children and the Summer Recreation Program had almost 4,000 Camden children participate in the program.
